

Rita – Therapy Journey (Clean Dialogue Format)

Session 1: Regret and Blame

Rita: I ruined my life.

Therapist: What makes you feel that way?

Rita: I made the wrong choices. I stayed in the wrong marriage.

Therapist: It sounds like you're carrying a lot of regret.

Rita: Yes. And I can't stop thinking about it.

Session 2: Stuck in the Past

Therapist: What happens when you think about those choices?

Rita: I replay everything. What I should have done differently.

Therapist: Does it change anything now?

Rita: No... but I can't stop.

Therapist: It keeps you stuck in the past.

Rita: Exactly.

Session 3: Identity and Fear

Therapist: Who are you without that past?

Rita: I don't know.

Therapist: That uncertainty feels scary?

Rita: Very. It's easier to stay in what I know, even if it hurts.

Session 4: Responsibility vs Self-Blame

Therapist: There's a difference between responsibility and blame.

Rita: What do you mean?

Therapist: Responsibility helps you move forward. Blame keeps you stuck.

Rita: I think I've been blaming myself.

Therapist: And what has that done for you?

Rita: Nothing... just made me feel worse.

Session 5: Letting Go

Therapist: What would happen if you stopped replaying the past?

Rita: I'd feel empty... but maybe free.

Therapist: That freedom might be uncomfortable at first.

Rita: Yes. But I think I want it.

Session 6: Moving Forward

Therapist: What is one small step forward?

Rita: Maybe focusing on what I can do now instead of what I didn't do.

Therapist: That's a powerful shift.

Rita: It feels lighter already.

Final Realization

Therapist: What have you learned about yourself?

Rita: I can't change the past, but I don't have to live in it.

Therapist: And now?

Rita: I want to start living my life as it is.
